terday, and when the contest was over there wasn't a pound of Tarantula meat within fifty miles of Chesterfield. It's useless trying to describe the mastieating process by which the Collegians perished. Suffice it to say that there is a twirler name! Kissenger, and that he twirler hame! Kissenger, and that tossed for the Augusta Grangers. Yes, he tossed—that's all. 'Tis true that eight other men supported him in splendid form, but the wonder could have "cooked" the Spiders all by hunselt.

Not even to first.

Up to the seventh inning not a single Tarantula planked his guffin on first—no, not one. And then, when the score stood four to goosege against them, Baby Phillips got his first on an error. He forthwith tried to purion second and perished. Dukegot his base on another error, and was knocked to second by O'Hara's single. Francisco de Rimini Duke then advanced the runners up a peg with another hit, and the cranks literally went wild. They did not yelp, but started up a continuous how that kept up until the inning closed. Everybody thought the Spiders would score. Just think of their chances, only one man out and three on tases. But they didn't. Elivson field out to first and Host to right field. The three runners were left hugging the bag. They rooted for nothing.

The rooters, realizing that they had ploughed up the earth for nothing, subsided and never had the Grangers. In the ninth inning, when the Grangers NOT EVEN TO FIRST.

again.

In the ninth inning, when the Grangers had piled up eight runs, the Spiders, by the aid of a single and several sacrifice hits, were able to put one man over the plate.

The Tarantulas were utterly "flim-flammed," and played a miserable game. If they had supported Host at all things might have been decidedly different.
The infield work of the Staunton Hill-Climbers was superb, as Eisey and Payner, their first and second basemen, played. ter, their first and second basemen, played wonderfully. Ellyson made a remarkably pretty catch.

Death of Mr. Wm. B. Weisiger.

Mr. Wm. B. Weisiger, one of Richmond's most popular young citizens, died at his place of residence, No. 22 Harrison street, last evening of typhoid fever, after an illness of several weeks. The deceased, who was in his 25th year, was a member of the firm of John W. Harrison & Co., merchandise brokers, and was highly esteemed in business circles. He was a son of Mr. Wm. H. Weisiger. The deceased was a very active member of the Ashby Light Horse, and was greatly liked by the command. In fact, he was universally popular, and few had more friends in social circles than he. Everyone knew Withe Weisiger, for he was aiways cheerful, bright and gay. He always had a hand in every harmless amusement, and was the favorite lad of our fashionable german clubs and select entertainments. His death has caused the deepest sorrow among his friends and, though so young, his loss will be greatly felt by all.

The funeral will take place from Centenary church on to-morrow afternoon at 4 o'clock, and the Ashby Light Horse will attend in a body.

LIKES THE OLD DOMINION. Reasons Why a Pennsylvania Farmer Set-

rled in Virginia. A Pennsylvania farmer recently pur-chased a farm in Virginia. In a letter to the Commissioner of Agriculture he gives the reasons he made the purchase as the reasons he made the purchase as foilows:

The price of land seemed exceedingly low compared with the farms in Pennsylvania. The buildings on the farms would cost, if new, as much as was asked for the land. The corn and tobacco, although but indifferently farmed, presented a fine spearance, and if properly handled could be made as productive as any of the farms in Lebanon county, Pennsylvania. The fruit trees looked remarkably healthy and fruit can be raised at a profit.

The people I found exceedingly kind and hospitable. The climate seemed to be all that could be desired. During the brottest part of the summer I found the temperature not oppressive—a nice breeze blowing nearly all the time. There are other possibilities which occurred to me afterwards—raising pigs, sheep, cattle and poultry, but the above-named reasons are the principal inducements which caused me to buy a farm in Virginia.

Young Woman in Bochester

A young woman of trim figure scated astride a horse is one of the sights of early morning in Rochester, N. Y., says the Pittsburg Dispatch.

The equestrienne's skirts, for there are two of them, widen gradually from the walst down, and fall gracefully so a e horse's sides, concealing the feet, stirrups and all. The waist of the habit is like that of an ordinary dress. A dainty riding cap completes the costume. The young woman may be seen riding any fine morning. She does not seek the seclusion of the side streets and the by-ways, but rides in the business streets and in the finest residence districts. It is an uncommon sight, and many people on their way to business stop and stare at the rider as if expecting some manoeuver of a circus nature. The young woman rides as if born to the saddle, and it is evident that she greatly enjoys her morning exercise.

A horseman said to-day: "I am glad to see that the recent by one lady rider.

A horseman said to-day: "I am glad to see that the recent English custom is followed here, even by one lady rider. There will be more to do it in time, and the horses will benefit thereby. I never have thought that the side-saddle was either dignified or easy, and I am certain that the tighter the girth the harder it is for a horse.

THE RACES AT RALEIGH.

Second Annual Meeting of The North Car olina Trotting Association. [Special.]

Raleigh, N. C., Aug. 24.—The second annual race meeting of the North Carolina Trotting-horse Breeders' Association began here to-day at the State fair grounds, Much attention has been given the track, which is better than ever before. A good many visitors are here. The horses are line ones, and to Capt. B. T. Williamson, who undertook the task of securing representative horses from all parts of the State, great credit is due. This meeting far excels all former ones. Interest in the horse has been wonderfully stimulated in the past two years. Only North Carolina horses are in these races.

On to-day's programme there were three entries, as follows:

"Sneak and Liat"—A Case of Unusual Interest in Western North Carolina.

(Special.)

Asheville, N. C., Aug. 24.—Judge Boykin is holding court at Marlon, McDowell county, this week. The case against Jams T. Griffin, editor of the Western Free Lance, for criminal libel, is engrossing the attention of the court, all the Marlon lawyers and quite a number of prominent visiting attorneys. The alleged libellous words were in reference to the character of J. C. L. Bird, a prominent young lawyer of Marion. They were published last March, when it was thought that H. A. Gudger, of Asheville, would be appointed collector of internal revenue, and it was reported that he offered the chief clerkship to Bird, whom the Free Lance denounced as a sneak and a liar and warned Gudger against making such an appointment. The indictment was acted on by the grand jury to-day and the trial will begin probably to-morrow. This criminal action is only the prelude to the more important civil suit for damages which will be heard next week and constitutes the trial of strength between the opposing forces. Major Linney, of Alexander county, and Michael Justice, Esq., of Ruthford, are among the prominent visiting attorneys engaged upon opposite sides in this case.

The defense, I understand, will be justification.

Storm of Wednesday.

(Special.)

Norfolk, Va., Aug. 24.—The northeasterly storm that culminated here early last night passed without damage except that resulting from weather bound vessels for a day or two. At Virginia Beach "the wind blew great guns" and registered seventy miles an hour at Cape Henry. The government lines on the coast are prostrated below Virginia Beach, but are intact between the city and Cape Henry. The tides were driven up high in the harbor last night and flooded several of the ends of streets.

Alfred Smith, a colored hand employed on Postmaster A. H. Limisay's farm near Deep Creek, was struck and killed by lightning during the storm yesterday. The tug "Croatan," of this port, is reported sunk in Currituck sound.

Pardridge Will Continue to Plunge. Pardridge Will Continue to Plunge.
Chicago, Aug. 24—"The report that I am about to abandon the Board of Trade to re-enter the mercantile field is wrong," said "Ed" Pardridge, the plunger, to-day. The speculator was a triffe put out over the gossip, and said that, while under certain contingencies he might take back his old store on State Street, now leased by Fisk, Joseph & Co., he had no intention whatever of quitting speculation. The negotiations between himself and Fisk, Joseph & Co, were still open, and he had no present means of knowing how they might terminate. If he should conclude to re-engage in mercantile business that fact would not stand in the way of his speculative business. That is of his speculative business. That is entirely another matter," concluded Mr. Pardridge.

The only way you can keep 'Ed' away from the Board of "rade," said one of his brokers, "will be to gag him and chain him in the middle of a desert la-land."
